

HARDING IN TWO BRAVE DECISIONS

Friendship and Political Prestige Sidetracked in Favor of Business.

By DAVID LAWRENCE.

Copyright 1921, by Janesville Gazette.

Washington—President Harding has just made two brave decisions which, irrespective of his political fortunes, stand out as milestones in his career.

To turn down his personal friend and political associate, Henry Cabot Lodge, on a matter that meant much to the chances of Mr. Lodge for re-election this fall was to do something which few presidents have had the courage to do.

To turn down almost the unanimous demand of his party associates in congress for either a bond issue or a series of direct taxes to raise money for a soldier bonus was also no simple matter.

Both decisions were based upon what Mr. Harding himself admits were the incalculable laws of business and sound finance as against the will of politics and special favor.

Briefly, Senator Lodge was put in an embarrassing position by some members of his own party who suggested that he should not get the benefit of the work to be done in re-considering the former German liner law.

Mr. Lodge was persuaded to introduce an amendment to a pending appropriation bill which would have compelled the United States Shipping Board to let the contracts to build new ships to the private bidders already made for the work by private firms.

Tying Up the Levitator

The senate adopted the amendment, but President Harding listened to the objections of Chairman Lasker of the shipping board who declared that several thousands of dollars in making surveys to determine how much to bid, and that sound business principles dictated the necessity of giving the work to the lowest bidder.

Mr. Harding was similarly advised by Secretary Donby of the navy department. It was hard, however, to say to Mr. Lodge that the amendment adopted by the senate should be ignored.

Mr. Harding was not a law, and isn't law yet. But a word from the president would have caused the shipping board to defer to Senator Lodge. The president has not uttered such a word.

President on the Bonus

As for the bonus, Mr. Harding's attitude was stated substantially as follows at the white house:

Under the pressure of war's responsibilities and the spirit of patriotism and the readiness to do or die, the government can raise almost any sum of money. It did during the war. But in times of peace there is not the same sweep of determination to do things. For this reason, the president doubts whether it would be possible to raise the necessary sum for the bonus under a bond issue without largely advancing current interest rates and thus disturbing the financial stability which the government is seeking in order to help the business world.

Mr. Harding feels that he has been entirely consistent in his attitude this time as compared with his last summer. He makes frank confession of the fact that in the primary campaign which preceded the Chicago convention of 1920 he came out for a soldier bonus. Things were said by him and sundry other candidates which he admits were not as sound in judgment as he finds things to be upon entering executive responsibility.

Mr. Harding is not now saying that the bonus is wrong in principle but he stands by it and will sign a bonus bill. Fortunately for him he did not.

JANESVILLE MEN AT LARGE SYRIAN WEDDING IN IOWA

Charles Adamany and Michael Raschid returned to Janesville Wednesday, after attending a Syrian wedding in Fort Madison, Ia., the largest in the history of the city. More than 4,000 people took part in the events of the day. Sacred Heart church being filled with several hundred others unable to gain entrance crowding the sidewalks in front.

The bride was Miss Edna Rashid, a cousin of Michael Rashid, Janesville, and the groom was James S. Rashid, Toulon, Ill.

Members of the Rashid family representing many sections of the country were in attendance. The family is one of the oldest in Syria and at one time all of its members lived in one city, Ned-J-Youn, in that country. It is believed the Rashid clan, as it is called by its members, is the largest residing in one town in Syria.

Among the hundreds of wedding presents was a touring car given by the bride's father, a prosperous merchant of Fort Madison.

Following the ceremony at 12:30 p. m. Sunday, in the church, the 150 guests enjoyed a wedding dinner at the Rashid home. Syrian songs were sung and the program was concluded with the singing of "America" and "The Star Spangled Banner."

Congratulatory telegrams were read as received from all parts of the United States, and a cablegram from the groom's mother in Syria was also read.

The wedding celebration lasted for four days. Several hundred gathered at the train, Tuesday afternoon, to see the couple leave for their honeymoon.

COON URGES MEN TO ASSIST IN WORK OF METHODIST CHURCH

"It's a great day of opportunity," said C. E. Coon, speaking before members of the Methodist Brotherhood at their regular meeting in the church Wednesday night.

There has never been a time in the history of the world, when there were greater problems awaiting us or greater things to be done."

He discussed the question of the coming service which has been taken up by the Brotherhood as their special responsibility in church work, emphasizing that the habit of regular attendance at church service, "enhances a man's self respect."

Frank Donno sang several vocal selections and Walter Helms rendered a group of old songs as soloists. John Koller presided.

Several songs were put on as a welcome to the Rev. Mr. Coon upon his initiation into the Brotherhood.

Supper was served at 5:30 to 100 men, elaborate decorations of room and tables having been arranged by a committee headed by Mr. J. T. Richards. The supper was in charge of Circle No. 6 with Mrs. J. promise an exact date or specify generally the time when the payment would be made. His position, therefore, today is what it was last summer. Time is not ripe for a bonus. Maybe it will never be during his administration but so far as the outlook at the moment is concerned, Mr. Harding reluctantly concludes that the bonus plan must be abandoned temporarily.

The sales tax is looked upon with more favor by Mr. Harding than any other special taxes suggested for paying the bonus. But the executive is inclined to wait until the whole taxation program is again revised so that the sales tax may absorb the present taxes as well as the new taxes required to pay the bonus.

Political pressure for the bonus has been intense. It has been met lately by strong pressure from business interests who also have political influence and who are exceedingly opposed to it comes to campaign contributions.

In the face of conflicting political currents, Mr. Harding has decided to give first consideration to the condition of the United States treasury which he is convinced will not stand further drain in this time. Sound finance has triumphed over party politics.

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE APOLLO.

Ability of the motion picture camera to get close to the scene of action, and to take pictures which are shown night times slower than normal, makes the motion pictures of the Carpenter-Dempsey bout in New York City July 7, give a much more clear view of the fight than many of those who paid huge sums of money secured. The picture will be shown at the Apollo theater for three days, starting next Monday.

Details of the fight which could not be seen even by those with ringside seats, are shown in this film by means of slow photography. Every detail of the match, including the knock-out blow, can be seen, and the science of the art is shown.

The Adjourned Stockholders meeting of the Janesville Country Club will be held Friday, Feb. 17, 1922, at 7:30 P. M. at the Cranston club, for the election of directors and any other business that may properly come before the meeting.

One of the most successful cribbage tournaments ever played at here came to a close Wednesday night, when the Knights of Columbus defeated the Buttermilks, 61 to 59, thereby giving the Lakota club a clear sweep of the tourney. Captain Joseph Jennings' Lakotas played consistently throughout the five weeks and showed unexpected cleverness against their more seasoned opponents.

The Buttermilks, composed of Odd Fellows, finished in second place with the Delaney and Langdon team in third. The Eagles wound up in fourth place with the Knights of Columbus and Moore tied for the cellar position.

The tournament was so close that interest remained high until the last game, Wednesday night. Each team was composed of 16 players. Six hundred games, or five matches of 120 games, were played by each team.

It is planned to start play in another tournament within the near future, according to F. J. Hinterschied, secretary of the first meet.

With both winning teams on the floor, it was decided to play off one of the matches of the semi-finals with the result the Methodists defeated the Lutherans, 7 to 2.

The Y. W. C. A. won over the United Brethren five in the next game, 16 to 4, while the St. Mary's quintet had an easy time of it with the Baptists in the last game of the evening winning 24 to 6.

Brumm and Gill Guilty of Playing "Pro" With Lakotas

BADGER PLAYERS SUSPENDED FOR APPEARING HERE

Roman (Kibo) Brumm, tackle on the 1921 Wisconsin football team, and Ralph Gill, substitute quarterback, were suspended from the University of Wisconsin. Both will be barred from future participation in badger sports for having played basketball with the Lakota Cardinals in Janesville early this winter, according to Coach Tom Jones of the University.

Both men, sophomores with two years more to go in football, confessed their professionalism Wednesday, told in Gazette.

The suspensions follow publication of a story in the Gazette Feb. 2, in that article it was stated that while the men had been dropped from the basketball team "for scholastic reasons" they had played with the Lakotas here.

Further probing is being done in the records of "Rollie" Williams of Edgerton and "Rowdy" Elliott of Muscoda. Williams played with the Cardinals here two years ago; Elliott played with the Janesville Cardinals. "The athletic council has not announced its final decision," said Director Jones, "but since the boys have confessed, their fate seems definite. We suspect the Lakotas were in a semi-professional team, but whether it is classified as such makes no difference, for the boys violated the conference rule against playing with an outside team."

Williams Gets Clean Bill

Before he entered college, Rollie Williams, three sport letter man, played with the Lakota five, but we believe the team was composed of amateurs that year for it competed in A. A. U. tournaments. But we are continuing our investigation of Williams' case and of the summer baseball record of "Rowdy" Elliott.

"All the talk about college athletes being crooked by the exposure of athletes who have broken rules is bunk. College athletes will survive, and will be better after the clean-up, if we spare the rod we spoil the child," said a college official.

"There has been too much laxity, especially regarding summer semi-professional baseball. The boys have come to the conclusion that college directors were winking at the rules, and in the face of growing opportunities to professionalize their skill, halfhearted who can sell his college spirit for $10."

"I have been wondering what would be the attitude of the University of Wisconsin should a majority of the conference schools vote for a change, allowing summer baseball. I am convinced Wisconsin would scratch baseball off its intercollegiate calendar."

Why Not a "J" Club at Local High School?

BY FRANK SINGLAR

Letter men are now attending the Normal high school and those who have graduated from that institution have formed an "N" club to promote athletic activity and to keep high the standards of sportsmanship.

This is a suggestion for Janesville. Sports have taken a big jump at the local school in the past year, largely because of greater interest by the faculty, board of education, and the alumni. Organization of a "J" club here would be a means of instilling a fresher spirit into Blue performers.

It is a distinct honor for a student to earn his "J". It stands for more than the mere having played upon a team. It represents physical ability, mental grit, and character. Alumni members of a "J" club could lend much in boosting competitive games.

The plan of the Blue and White post of the American Legion to award the student who stands highest in athletics and scholarship is a hint of what a "J" club could do. The possibilities are unbounded.

LOCAL BASKETERS PROMISE MADISON FIVE HOT BATTLE

Bickson..... Holzwarth

Dougherty..... Otis

Defeated only by Evansville, University high comes here Thursday night for a return game with Janesville. The Madison team holds a victory over the present Blue five, having been the first team to hand Janesville a defeat this season.

In practice Wednesday, the locals showed up in fine style. Development of a free throw artist is expected to have a greater effectiveness toward winning. The Blues will lay for Holzwarth, center, who cased three baskets in the last minutes of play in the previous game to win after Janesville had trailed University by two points through the early stages.

In the previous clash between the two quintets, Janesville trailed University high by two baskets until the last few minutes of play. Holzwarth, center, tore loose with three baskets by evading Janesville's guards. Knowing this, he will be watched carefully, as will Stahr and Kennor, the other star men on the Madison five.

100 TEACHERS TO INVADE MADISON

Schools to Close Friday for Convention at Madison—Willette on Program.

One hundred teachers composing the staff of the Janesville schools will leave their attention from teaching to learning Friday and Saturday when they attend the thirty-second annual convention of the Southern Wisconsin Teachers' association at Madison. Superintendent Frank O. Hilt, this city, is president.

Occupying an equal place of prominence on the program with Dr. Jay William Judson, of the University of Wisconsin, are Willette Huggins, and Stuart J. T. Hooper, of the school for the blind of Janesville. It will be the largest gathering before which Miss Huggins has appeared. She and Mr. Hooper will undoubtedly receive more interested listening than anyone else on the program.

Mr. Hooper contends that the greatness of Willette's remarkable powers of sensitivity is not her means to education—training of others who teachers have been attempting to train through closed channels. Mr. Hooper will speak and Willette will demonstrate her powers to hear with her fingers and see by smell at the general session, Saturday morning.

The topic is "Educational Possibilities of Broader Sense Training Illustrated by Accomplishments of Willette Huggins, a Blind and Deaf Girl."

Schools to Close
All public schools of Janesville will be closed Friday so that all teachers may attend. General and sectional meetings will be held Friday and Saturday.

Many teachers from Janesville and this vicinity are on the program. Principal Frank Lowth, of the Rock county teachers' training school, will speak at the meeting of teachers in the morning. He will speak on "What More Can They Do?" Miss Lucy Whitmore, Garfield school principal, is to speak at the city grades meeting on "Method and Measurement in Spelling."

At the history sectional meeting, Miss Mabel Keesey, of the high school will talk on the one year course in general history in the high school. Miss Edith Hartman, supervisor of art in the public schools, will speak on "Aims in Art Training."

To Attend Sectional
Prof. Paul Carlson, Whitewater Normal school, will preside at the commercial sectional meeting and Prof. J. P. Cotton of the same school will speak on "Training in Salesmanship."

Prof. J. P. Cotton of the same school will speak on "Training in Salesmanship."

A special train on the Northwestern will leave at 7:30 a. m. for the accommodation of local teachers who are requested to get their tickets by Thursday night.

Edgerton—Mrs. Margaret Earle, 59, a well-known pioneer of this city, died at 10 p. m. Tuesday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. N. E. Nelson, after suffering from a stroke of paralysis and the effects of old age.

Mrs. Earle, who was Margaret White, was born at Ash Grove, Vt., Scotland, Dec. 21, 1832 and when ten years old, came with her father and others in the family to America. Upon arrival in the United States they all came over for a time to Wisconsin, settling on a farm known as the Calden farm, where the father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Jean White, lived for the remainder of their lives.

In 1851 Mrs. Earle was married to John Earle, and they began house-keeping on the old homestead, where Mr. Earle died. Eight boys and five girls were born to them. The following survive: Five sons, David, Perth, N. D., John, Mankato, Minn.; James, Mayfield, S. D.; Robert, West Bluff street, Janesville; and Thomas of Edgerton, former daughters, Mrs. John Hest, Evansville, Ind.; Agnes Robertson, Cooksville; Mrs. Belle Walker and Mrs. N. E. Nelson, Edgerton. Anna, Alexander, Charles and William, all preceded their mother in death. For the past 19 years Mrs. Earle has lived with her daughter.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Friday at the residence, 13 E. R. St. L. A. Hest will officiate and burial will be in the family lot in the Fulton cemetery.

CHEER UP! WEATHER
MAN SAYS "WARMER"
Fair and mild was the prediction of L. C. Mead, weather prophet for the period between the 12th and 16th of February. Persons putting faith in the prognostication received a chilly shock upon waking Thursday morning to find the mercury contracted at 5 degrees below zero. The highest recorded in this period has been 25 with a zero in the night. Last Monday Wednesday was one of the most severe cold days of the winter, not so much because of low reading, but on account of a piercing wind. The official weather forecast for Friday is "warmer."

LIVE WIRE BOYS
TO PRESENT CIRCUS
A circus with all the glittering costumes, marvelous acrobatic stunts, and performing animals seen under the big tents, will be reproduced by the Live Wire boys of the Methodist church Friday night under the direction of E. E. Jolly.

SUGAR FIRM PLANS BIG BEET ACREAGE

To Sign Contracts with Farmers Next Week—Rate $2 Less Per Ton.

Contracts with Southern Wisconsin and Northern Illinois farmers to grow beets will be let by the Rock County Sugar company next Monday. It was announced Thursday by William C. Proost, manager of the local plant. The decision follows the visit here Wednesday of James E. Davidson, Bay City, Mich., secretary-treasurer of the concern.

The firm will try to put 5,000 acres in beets, stated Mr. Proost. "The rate will be $5 flat, which is about $2 less a ton than last year, but is in accordance with the present sugar market. The factory will open next fall at the usual time, it was stated, employing about 200 men. There had been some previous discussion by the company officials of abandoning work in this territory direct to retailers and confectioners. It is announced, this being a new departure.

Circuit Court Opens March 6

Clash Over Legal Point

Los Angeles—A technical legal argument opened Thursday's session of the trial of Madalynne Obenchain, charged with the murder of J. Belton Kennedy. The argument was ordered made out of the presence of the jury by superior Judge Sidney N. Reeve.

Defense attorneys, Judd Rush and Al McDonald, raised the point late Wednesday, contending the acts of Arthur E. Church, co-defendant, subsequent to the commission of the crime, could not be admitted against the woman.

This developed when the state sought to introduce through Thomas Haley, proprietor of a downtown hotel, testimony as to Church's alleged hurried departure the morning following the slaying.

Haley, at Church's recent trial, which ended in a disagreement of the jury, testified Church left the hotel, leaving in his room newspapers containing accounts of the murder and folded on the pages bearing the last part of these articles.

PARENT-TEACHERS' ASS'NS ARE ACTIVE

This week has been an especially busy one for the Parent-Teachers' organizations of the city. The Washington school organization sponsored a talk at the high school Monday night by Prof. Frederick La Rue, Beaver Dam. The Adams association of which Mrs. J. Anthes is president is meeting Thursday for a Valentine party. The Webster-Garfield had a successful meeting Wednesday night, and the St. Patrick's and Jackson Parent-Teachers will meet in their schools Friday night.

THE BENCH AND THE PUBLIC.

In the city of Okmulgee, Oklahoma, a bank failed with some 3,000 depositors losing their money. There were phases of the failure involving prominent men of the state which called for an investigation of the facts. Evidence was presented and the grand jury was about to make its report when the judge of the court dismissed it, giving as an excuse that the jury had been illegally drawn. But public indignation rose so high that the judge fled the city. Later he said he would be back and face the charges of collusion which the local bar association had brought against him. Instead he sent his resignation.

Such an episode is unusual. One thing we have been able to say in the United States is that with their great number the courts have been almost without exception, clean and have stood the acid test of honesty. It is true some of the lower courts in several of the larger cities have been open to the charge of being too close to the political forces which have made them judges, but there is something about the very fact of elevation to the bench that has acted as a balance in favor of justice and against any form of favoritism.

The law provides, and the bench must use, a scale of measurement in opinion and action which makes for honesty. Public opinion is also a matter not to be trifled with as many a man and many a body created by the people have found to consequent surprise. There were no serious threats against the Oklahoma judge, only a concerted opinion that he was mixed up in a questionable effort to cover up the men responsible for the loss of the public's money. That opinion was so strong that he reversed himself quite hastily.

NO MATTER WHERE CITY MANAGEMENT HAS BEEN OFFERED TO THE PEOPLE SPECIAL PRIVILEGE HAS BEEN IN OPPOSITION.

SPEAKING OF THE CORN FED CITIZEN.

Corn used to provide a large part of the food of the family. It was the easiest raised and most universal grain. From ocean to ocean it had fed the pioneer American and he was a rather sturdy sort. And in 1922 corn constitutes 55 per cent of the grain crop of the nation. Now we have started a movement to educate the people again to eat more corn. There has been a decided falling off in the consumption of corn products for food. Little corn meal is sold compared with what was handled years ago and the amount has been decreasing each year.

When the milk producers wanted more milk consumed they started a propaganda for use of milk. Back of it may have been the element of selfishness, but it was the right kind of selfishness. It had a good purpose and has been effective in building up many a child who before the milk diet was neither strong nor had appetite for other foods. There may be selfishness in the movement now organized to eat more corn foods, but it is of the right kind. 40 per cent of the corn produced in the United States is used on the farms. We have grown to be a nation of wheat eaters. We have lost the gentle art of cooking corn meal into the hundred or more of delicious dishes that our grandmothers used to make. It is hard to find any of these in the very modern cook books. But when there was a plate of Johnny cake, golden in color, sweet to taste, crumbling from its shortness and served hot with butter, there never was a wheat flour product its equal. An Indian pudding filled with currants and 'steamed'—well there are some things so sacred that they ought not to be lightly treated—only eaten. Corn is a strength builder, it furnishes elements that almost everybody needs—every normal person at least—and its increased use now that public attention has been called to it, is definitely good for the human race.

No one is expected to eat all corn or all wheat. But it is a good thing to remember when making up the family menu that the truly American dish is made of Indian corn.

It is a matter worth conjecturing as to just what would have happened Monday evening had there not been publicity and an expression through the "Voice of the People."

Abraham Lincoln had infinite patience. He was not elected senator when he ran against Stephen A. Douglas. But he became president. He was never daunted by defeat when he was convinced the cause was just. Slavery had its apologists in the north. They said it was an old recognized institution, that it "used to be" and for that reason ought to be. It was one of these "forty-years ago" institutions. But it went. The best way to one's fate toward tomorrow rather than yesterday, one goes farther. That's the way with business.

The Voteless Capital City

By FREDERICK J. HASKIN

Washington—The opinion is being widely expressed here that Washington's Knickerbocker theater disaster may be indirectly connected with the capital's form of government. The claim has been put forth that such a disaster would have been far less likely to occur in a city governed by responsible officials.

In other cities government officials are elected to legislate for the people, and if they prove to be inefficient the people have it in their power to elect new ones. In Washington, the entire municipal government is in the hands of federal officials who are occupied with affairs of national-wide interest. The selection of the commissioners of the district is one small detail in the work of the president, who may or may not thoroughly understand the needs of the capital city. Whoever is appointed to office in the district must be accepted by the people.

So, in the talk of a building inspection, renovation of old buildings, compulsory removal of shanties from the sidewalks and roofs and other safeguards against another disaster, there are also voices raised to urge a more fundamental reform—a responsible government for the district.

Two bills and a resolution for a constitutional amendment, all designed to improve the lot of the capital city, have for some time been before congress. Several senators and many Washingtonians are urging that one of these measures be passed as a memorial to the former congressman and other residents of Washington who lost their lives in the Knickerbocker disaster.

The senate committee on the District of Columbia recently held a hearing on the three measures for enfranchising the district, and it is believed that one of the bills will be reported out favorably.

Of the proposed measures, the constitutional amendment is the least likely to win approval of congress. It would give the district two senators, two representatives in congress, based on population, and votes in the electoral college. Control of the city's affairs by congress would be continued as before, but the people would have representatives with voting powers to back their interests in the capitol.

Remembering the long and stormy battles which put through the woman suffrage and prohibition amendments, the adherents of district suffrage see little hope for any amendments to the constitution in the near future. It has never been easy to amend the document, and the controversies over prohibition will lead congress to scrutinize suggestions for changes more cautiously than ever before.

Getting two-thirds of the members of both branches of congress to approve an amendment concerning a district which few of them regard as home is a task, it is realized, prove a difficult undertaking. And getting three-fourths of the states interested in ratifying such an amendment which seems to concern them only indirectly would be equally difficult. It is said that the majority of senators and representatives firmly oppose the idea of giving the capitol suffrage in this way.

The advocates of freedom for the district, therefore, are pinning their hopes on the other measures. One of these would give the district two delegates in congress and almost complete self-government. The people would be allowed to elect the commissioners to direct the city's affairs, the board of education and the public utilities commissioners. There is some sentiment in congress in favor of this wide latitude for the district, but probably not enough to insure passage.

The most promising bill, so far as enactment is concerned, is the least liberal. It leaves congress in control of the city and allows the district people to elect one delegate to congress. This official would be on a par with the delegates from Hawaii, Porto Rico, Alaska, and the Philippines. He would have a voice in congress, but no vote.

A voteless delegate is obviously not so desirable to a city as a full-fledged representative. But the District of Columbia has got to the point where it will accept any measure that gives it a standing as a responsible community.

It has taken Washington some time to be aroused to interest in this question. Any other city would have long ago opposed the idea of having its affairs administered for it by a body, no single member of which was directly concerned in its welfare. But Washington has a large proportion of transient residents. The government clerk, diplomat, politician, and army and navy officer tend to regard life in Washington as a camping out experience. In the past few years, however, business men and citizens' associations have succeeded in interesting this casual population in the capital's welfare.

A few wealthy men who are interested in banks, real estate, and utilities and who are powerful under the present system are said to be the mainstay of the opposition.

The need for a change in the government of the capital is a common topic about the city. When the district appropriation bill comes up, congress is told how many schools are needed. Crowded conditions are pointed out. Congressmen are taken to see schoolrooms with every desk taken and children sitting in chairs too high for them or at the teacher's desk. Perhaps the committee is sympathetic, and perhaps not. But the requested appropriation is only a "little." But somewhere between the committee and the president's signature the funds for adequate school accommodations are slashed so that conditions remain much as they were.

Washington shrugs its shoulders and remarks that it wouldn't happen anywhere else. But of course congress, aside from a few Members, possibly, isn't vitally interested in the district, and it is easy to economize there.

This goes on in every phase of Washington's government. The fire chief is now lavishing the city with a starlight light thrown on the one long ago. A new street car should have been built, but the money for it was saved for other purposes. The Knickerbocker theater while rescue work was being done in the dark would have been an invaluable aid. It might have saved lives. But even now, the searchlight truck has been out from the appropriation bill as not urgently necessary.

Workers for local suffrage here see signs pointing to a change in the city's government. They firmly believe that before this congress ends some sort of suffrage will be granted the people of the national capital, and that they will be given some measure of political liberty enjoyed by citizens of the states.

It is a strange fact that Washington should be the only capital in the world without a representative government of some sort. It is even stranger, perhaps, that this city, which has a larger population than seven of the states, should be the only community under the United States flag that is completely disfranchised.

It is a good thing to remember in any reform or change based on sound business principles.

One thing is sure, the public does not have to attend disreputable movies.

William Jennings Bryan is soon to announce that he is a candidate for the senate in Florida according to news from Miami. Mr. Bryan has been a candidate heretofore several times and it will be no new experience. It would be something new, however, were he to be elected.

FRIENDS

There was sunshine in the valley and the roses were in bloom. The skies were blue above me, but I walked the place in gloom. I was sad and discontented in a garden that was fair.

For with all the joy about me, not a friend of mine was there. I'd have traded right that minute all the fields where violets grow. And the balmy summer breezes for a sight of northern snow.

For the beauty of the blossoms had but little charm for me. It was friendly, smiling faces I was hungering to see.

Oh, what are scenes of beauty when your friends are far away. And who could like a garden if alone he had to stay?

Though the skies are blue above you, there can be no peace of mind. Amid scenes of richest splendor if you've left your friends behind.

So I'll gladly brave the blizzard and I'll tramp the snowy street. For at every turn and corner there are smiling friends to meet.

And though far away is sunshine, I find it: happiness depends. Not on sky or track or roses, but on being with your friends.

Who's Who Today

BRIG. GEN. DOUGLAS MAC ARTHUR

That Brig. Gen. Douglas Mac Arthur, commandant at West Point, will resign his commission in the army when he leaves that institution in a few days, is the rumor in Washington circles. He has been assigned to the Philippines. His transfer from West Point is said to be the principal reason for the purporting action of the War Department.

In point of service MacArthur is one of the young war heroes. He has had from twenty-three to twenty-six years.

At the outbreak of the war MacArthur was a major in the engineer corps, having been attached to the general staff and having been the war department censor during the Pershing expedition into Mexico. When the Rainbow division was sent to the Philippines, MacArthur was made a lieutenant colonel and chief of staff of the division and went with it to France, where he earned praise for his bravery, being one of the first American officers to go over the top with the French.

Later MacArthur was made a colonel, then a brigadier-general and for a time he had command of the Rainbow division. He came back to the United States, was made a lieutenant colonel and chief of staff of the division and went with it to France, where he earned praise for his bravery, being one of the first American officers to go over the top with the French.

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Noted Physician and Author

EAT 'EM ROUGH

There are many vicious circles in human hygiene. One of the most difficult to break we encounter is the confusion of cause and effect in the avoidance of certain of the coarser or rougher foods by persons who suffer with colitis—Inflammation of the large intestine. Before the advent of the specific constipation which frequently accompanies colitis will not take such roughage as wheat bran freely, because they imagine it may "irritate" the intestine. And it is old story with persons afflicted with mucous colitis, that they can't eat green corn, cabbage, asparagus, celery leaves, lettuce, cucumbers, spinach and the like; nor fruits with skins and seeds, and various other valuable or indeed indispensable articles of diet, because, forsooth, these coarse things may "irritate" the intestine of prove "indigestible."

Bacterial infection plays an important role in the causation of some forms of colitis. But improper feeding practices or customs play a still more important role. In fact it is very reasonably argued by Dr. Robert McCarrison of Oxford, England, in a recent lecture delivered before the society of biological research, University of Pittsburgh, that too great "refinement" or "purifying" of the diet is a common primary cause of impaired digestion and intestinal disorders in Great Britain and America. McCarrison, an officer of the Indian medical service, passed several years of his professional life in a remote part of the Himalayas among some races wholly isolated from civilization. Although he had about 400 major operations each year he asserts he never encountered a case of gastric or duodenal ulcer, of appendicitis, of mucous colitis, of asthenic dyspepsia, or of cancer. The people were of magnificent physique, long lived, very fertile, and preserved the characters of youth until late in life. Their remarkable health, McCarrison ascribes to these circumstances: (1) Infants to be nursed as nature intended them to be—at the breast. (2) The people live on the unsophisticated foods of nature—milk, eggs, grains, fruit and vegetables. "I don't suppose," he remarked Dr. McCarrison, "that one in every thousand of them has ever seen a tin of condensed milk, or a packet of infant food, nor that as much sugar is imported into their country as a single tin of condensed milk in a day." (3) Their religion prohibits alcohol—they are a teetotal race. (4) Their manner of life requires the vigorous exercise of their bodies.

The "refinement" of food by various manipulations—combining, freezing, thawing, bleaching, heating, drying, oxidation, polishing—robs it of vitamins, to be sure. But that is not the whole story. The stomach and intestine require bulk, roughage, substance which does not digest and is indigestible by man, to keep the entire muscle, the digestion muscle, the muscular coat of the food tube, in proper functional condition. If this roughage is lacking or inadequate in quantity, even though the food contain sufficient vitamins, health is bound to suffer seriously.

Objections to the inclusion of adequate quantities of more roughage in the daily dietary are most specious and based upon faulty physiological theories. For health's sake we must eat plenty of leaves, fibers, roots and herbs, fruits with skins and seeds. We should eat 'em rough, not refined.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

High School Intelligence.

I am a girl 16 and up to this year have always worn long drawers in winter time. I am now a sophomore and this year all the girls laugh at me. Mother wants me to continue, but I object to being laughed at. (A. L.)

Answer—Wear what your own personal comfort dictates. The hygienic question is largely answered when I advise you to wear that which is most comfortable under all circumstances. Let the baby sleep.

My baby is now 12½ months old. When I feed him he cries and vomits. He is a very healthy baby, not afraid of a draft of air or wind, a regular baby boy. (Mrs. L.)

Answer—Generally a healthy baby should sleep immediately after feeding, after the age of 16 months. Of course this implies that the baby is fed on a healthy and liberal diet suitable for a child over a year old. It is bad practice from infancy to keep a baby sucking from a bottle until he is old enough to take a solid food. His milk should be fed from a cup from the time he is 15 months old and the bottle discarded.

Do you advise a dandelion root boiled with wild cherry bark for pimples? (Miss L. S.)

Answer—Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope and ask for advice about pimples.

Kindly advise what book or pamphlet dealing with sex hygiene I may give my 11 year old daughter to read. (Mrs. H. A. S.)

Answer—"How Shall I Tell My Child?" a pamphlet by Mrs. Woodruff, published by Revell. "Now Chapman," published by Revell. "The Mother's Reply," by Nellie M. Smith, published by American Social Hygiene association. New York, N. Y. 10 cents, or send me stamped, addressed envelope and ask for my monograph on the subject.

Q. What direction does a chinook come from? H. H.

A. The weather bureau says that these winds usually occur in mountain regions and are the result of a downward movement of the atmosphere by which its heat is greatly increased, due to increase in pressure. They may occur on any side of the mountain range, therefore blow from any direction of the compass.

Q. What is the value of all the railroads in the United States? E. H.

A. The official value of the railroads of the United States has not been completed. However, the interstate commerce commission has valued the railroads at $13,900,000,000 for the purpose of fixing rates in accordance with the provisions of the transportation act of 1920.

Q. What was the war costing the United States at the time of the armistice? J. W.

Q. What became of the old army transport McCrellan? C. P. G.

A. The McCrellan crossed to France in 1918 and was used as a transport for American troops in 1918, but was never brought back to this country. It was used as a floating refrigerator at St. Nazaire, and later the government sold the transport to France.

Q. What is meant by a "endmen's victory"? H. B.

A. A Cadmean victory (Greek proverb) was one in which the victors suffered as much as the defeated.

Q. When was the law passed giving discharged soldiers the $50 bonus? O. K.

A. The bill granting a cash bonus of $50 to our soldiers in the world war was signed by the president and became a law on Feb. 24, 1920.

The Guarded Heights

By WADSWORTH CAMP

Copyright 1921.

WHAT WAS GOING BEFORE? George Morton goes to work at the heights. He is a well-to-do man, when his father loses all his property—a livery business, George becomes a horse trainer and as a part of the job acts as groom to Sylvia Planter when she rides. Sylvia is thrown from her horse and thinking her unconscious, George kisses her, calling out that he loves her. She drives him from the place and George through her brother, goes to Princeton, meets Daisy, a tutor, gets a place on the football team and ends his college to win from Harvard. He makes many acquaintances. He has determined that Sylvia Planter shall marry him as a matter of fact several times, each time seemingly winning the breach between them. But he continues in the determination. Set Alston is very kind to George, and at her home meets her friend, Sylvia, which is embarrassing.

(Continued from Yesterday.) Lambert spread his hands. "What is there about you and Sylvia—ever since that day? I believe you, but I tried to give you a licking for her sake once, and I did it again." George laughed pleasantly. "You make me feel young." "Clearly Lambert meant to warn him, for he went on still aggressively: 'I care more for her than anybody in the world.' The laughter left George's face. 'Anybody?' Lambert was self-conscious now. 'Just about. See here. What are you driving at?' George yawned. 'I must wash up. I've a lot of work to do.' 'I'd like to know just what went on here,' Lambert said. 'Why don't you ask Dalrymple. Dolly isn't all bad.' Lambert offered as he left. 'She's been my friend a good many years.' 'Why by all means keep him,' George answered, 'and keep him to yourself; but when he comes around hang on to the ink pots.' His apparent good humor didn't survive the closing of the door. His dislike of Dalrymple fattened on the memory of the incident. It had left a sting. He hadn't stopped the man in time. Selling himself. Was she? She appeared to his mind, no longer intolerant, rather with an air of shame-faced apology for all the

BEAUTY CHATS by Edna Kent Forbes

WHEN YOU DANCE

The one time when a girl wants to be the best is when she dances. I know because I have written them to me a few weeks before some special dance is contemplated, somehow thinking they can make themselves quite beautiful in that short space of time. They can't, of course, and I hate to tell them so, so I tell them that all the little things that can be done to improve their appearance.

First of all the dance frock itself is always becoming. It is more becoming to a young girl than any of her other dresses simply because it is soft and silky, and by its very liveliness, sets off the young face and figure. Secondly, and perhaps after all this is most important, the mere fact that the girl is going to dance makes her eyes sparkle and cheeks flush becomingly.

So much for essentials. Now there are what I might call minute beautifiers. The hair should be shampooed and waved, if it looks well waved, one or two days before the dance. This is so most of the curls will come out and only a soft, unobtrusive wave left. Then when the hair is softly combed it will be sure to look its best.

If the nails are manicured the day of the dance the hands will look nice. If the elbows are sharp or dark in color they should be treated with cold cream for a few days before the dance. When you dress use vanishing cream on them under the powder.

N. N. N.—Hair that is inclined to be dry should not be washed oftener than once in three weeks. If your hair is thin your scalp needs some treatment such as a daily massage, or the massage and a tonic, three times each week.

Jane—The constant use of a fine toothed comb would be very irritating to the scalp and the dried particles of the white of egg you suggest will likely cause the hair to break by reason of the friction. A dry shampoo occasionally will be a better way of cleansing the hair when you do not have time for the washing.

Peggy—The callus on the feet, sometimes appear on the feet can be removed by using a sanitary file on them after bathing. They are only a collection of dead skin that can be

Dinner Stories

Mark Twain, who couldn't resist playing practical jokes, wanted to "put one over" on the preacher. After listening to one of his sermons, he stalked up to him, grasped his hand cordially and said: "Reverend, I certainly listened to that sermon with pleasure, but do you know that I have a book at home that contains every word of it." The preacher rasped in astonishment and replied: "You amaze me. This is an original sermon. I wrote it myself last night." Mark Twain replied, with a mischievous twinkle in his eye: "Well, Reverend, if you don't believe it, I will send you the book." The preacher asked him to do so, and Mark Twain sent him a dictionary.

Daddy came home from the office early one evening, and mother had not returned from some friends whom she had been visiting for ten days. Little four-year-old Gwendolyn ran up to her father's side. "Daddy," she cried, "I've been wanting to see you for a long time when mother's not near." "Why, my little girl," asked the father. "Well, dad," answered Gwendolyn, "please don't tell mother, because she's an awful dear, but I don't think she knows much about bringing up children." "What makes you think that?" asked her father. "Well," replied Gwendolyn, "she makes me go to bed when I am wide awake, and she makes me get up when I am asleep."

"Tinker Bob" Stories

by Carlyle H. Holcomb

TINKER BOB MEETS JOHNNY ELEPHANT

"I'll find out who that fellow is," never can tell what these creatures of said Tinker. This was the only way he knew of to get an introduction to the wonderful new creature. He didn't look very new though, for his skin was tough as leather and as wrinkled as could be.

The Wonderful Creature of His Desire took him to the place where he could see the eyes of this fellow and the moment the creature saw Tinker Bob he began to back away, thinking perhaps that Tinker wanted to use the path in which he stood.

"You don't need to be afraid of me," said Tinker as he walked closer.

The great animal, hearing words that he understood, became quite friendly. "Don't you get too close," said Silky, the foolish monkey. "You

Johnny Elephant laughed to hear such words as these. "What is that long thing that hangs on the front of your head?" asked the King.

"You mean my nose?" inquired the powerful creature.

"Surely you don't call that thing that looks like a tail, a nose?" "Well, I thought you would call it my nose. I call it my trunk." "Your trunk? Well of all things, I thought a trunk was for the purpose of carrying things in," said Tinker Bob.

"That's just what it's for. I carry all of my possessions in my trunk." Then Mr. Elephant gathered some grass in his great trunk and thrust it in his mouth. "You see," said he, "I even feed myself out of my trunk."

This sight so pleased Tinker and Silky that they laughed and laughed and Tinker Bob asked Johnny Elephant to do it again that they might watch more closely how it was done. "Do you have any friends?" asked the King.

"Well I guess," Mr. Elephant replied. "I have a family and they are the best friends I have. Come with me and I'll show you where I live and where my family is." Tinker Bob and Silky were glad.

SCIENTIFIC LIGHTING FOR THE HOME

As long as we housewives are not industrial "riks," lighting experts refuse to lavish their costly advice upon us. There are several volumes on "Eye Strain in Industry," but nary a book on "Eye Strain in Domesticity."

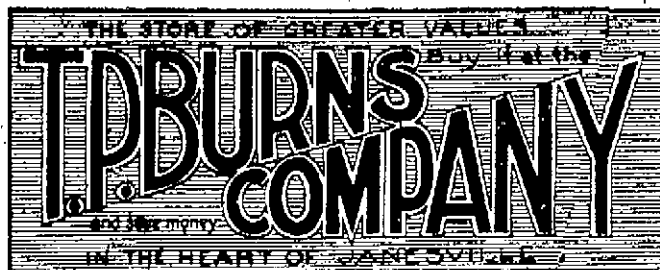

As long as there is no one measuring how we can read, sew and cook most efficiently with the least eye strain, the only thing for us to do is "crib" from those industrial findings: The eyes should never be exposed to direct light sources of any kind. (That means that our hand fashioned shades of silk and parchment shields not only add a decorative note to the room, but also lessen eye strain.) Attractive, soft color schemes of variety will prove refreshing to the eye. Monotony in color should be avoided. (That from an industrial engineer was right when she approached lighting problems from the standpoint of attractiveness.) Dark corners should be illuminated with diffused indirect light in order to prevent excess of contrast in light and shade. (This applies particularly to kitchen illumination. A small sum invested in an indirect lighting fixture will pay for itself in the satisfaction of having a shadowless kitchen where one never stands in one's own light and where pantry shelves and stove recesses are as well lighted as the middle of the room.) Cheerful surroundings, well illuminated, add a great deal to the comfort of the individual because seeing is a nerve action.

GRAIN

Chicago Review
 Chicago—Higher prices here for wheat were reached Thursday during the first part of the day. A substantial upturn in Liverpool quotations being a stimulus to buyers. Unfavorable crop advices from the domestic winter crop in the southwest tended also to lift values. Four-day sales were in evidence, but they failed to exert more than temporary influence. Opening prices, which were lower than the previous day, were followed by a slight rise and then by a rise higher than before.
